

A cancer diagnosis will make time stand still for more than 2 million people in America this year.

American Cancer Society Cancer Action Network
fightcancer.org/time

ADVERTISEMENT

ADVERTISEMENT

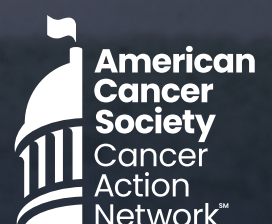

ADVERTISEMENT

It's been 19 years since cancer sidelined Ian.

Ian Lock
Salt Lake City, UT

When Ian was diagnosed with cancer after a high school football game injury, time stood still. This year more people than ever before will face a life-changing cancer diagnosis, and rates are rising in younger generations. When Congress prioritizes cancer research funding and access to prevention, you make time for all those impacted by cancer.

FIGHT CANCER : MAKE TIME

fightcancer.org/time

Cancer couldn't stop Ian.

Since his diagnosis:

peaks
reached

degrees earned

years as a cancer researcher

and only Ian

Thanks to investments in the fight against cancer, Ian has had more time to live life to the fullest, giving him the opportunity to train and work as a cancer researcher. We have made great progress, averting 4.1 million cancer deaths since 1991. But we can't let up. Now is the time to prioritize cancer research and prevention and make time for generations to come.

Congress: Increase cancer research funding to the highest possible levels.

FIGHT CANCER : MAKE TIME

fightcancer.org/time

